(DGL) started its Massachusetts office in Salem. When the time came to find more space, they were looking for a convenient North Shore location. In 2003, the firm relocated to Cummings Center. DGL has two other locations: one in Maine and the other in New York.

DGL is a law firm that represents servicers, lenders, and banks. It relies on repeat business, and first impressions can be crucial. "It is important for the firm to present itself in a professional manner. We want our appearance to meet the high expectations of our clients. Being located at Cummings Center allows us to achieve and exceed those expectations," according to founding member John Doonan.

DGL has expanded several times since arriving at Cummings Center. The Beverly office has 35 local employees, six of which recently celebrated 10 years with the firm. "We've grown fourfold since our early days. We were originally located in Suite 213-C and slowly took additional adjacent space, until there was none left. That's how we ended up in Suite 225-D," John explained. On May 1, 2016, the firm reached a professional milestone of 30 years in business.

"Cummings Properties is great to deal with. The location, the professionalism of the staff, the building maintenance; it all makes a huge difference," said John. "The proof is in the pudding; we've stayed!"

"It is especially rewarding to see well-established firms, such as DGL, not only choose to stay at Cummings Center but also grow and thrive here. We congratulate DGL on 30 years in business and look forward to celebrating many more business milestones with John and his team," said Cummings Properties account manager Joe Martin.
